Award-winning storyteller Diane Edgecomb's popular dinosaur adventures complement their scientific facts with a happy dose of humor. The original stories include: Pattysaurus in which selfish Patty becomes so obsessed with her dinosaur collection that she turns into a gigantic sauropod herself and Egg Mountain in which the audience helps out on this surprise-filled journey that leads to the discovery of Maiasaura, the first dinosaur known to care for its young. Based on current scientific discoveries, this piece educates as it entertains. Dinosaur lovers of all ages will enjoy the colorful posters, dinosaur sign-language and audience participation that keeps audiences engaged and asking for MOOORE!

Registration is required. Call, come in, or email Tressy at tcollier@cwmars.org.

Registration for Blackstone residents begins on February 2.
